“Where mind and uncertainty collide....”

Written and devised by Siamsa Tíre’s resident youth theatre, It’s All True! follows the story of two teenagers who despite having nothing in common, fall in love. This dynamic piece, which explores relationships and love through the life of Eve, is the fourth production from Free Range Youth Theatre since 2008. This production was made possible with funding from Kerry County Council’s Arts Office and Kerry Education Services, assistance which is gratefully acknowledged by all involved

Under the direction of Joe O’Brien, the members of the Free Range Youth Theatre have worked hard together to put this piece of multi media theatre on the stage. One of the most striking elements of the piece is original music and lyrics created by the group along with a very strong visual multi media element.

The group started off by discussing issues facing young people today, and then ‘workshopped’ their ideas, writing up the scenes on line afterwards,” says Joe. “The piece is quite fragmented in style, we play a lot with images, recorded and live” adds Joe, “but the basic story is a very simple one of life and love – though we did decide to explore the darker side of society... All in all, it’s a very exciting piece which will definitely entertain audiences!

The young performers have invested hugely in this production over the last six months and more, and derived enjoyment and a strong sense of achievement from their experiences: It’s a modern take on an age old story”, It was hard work but worth it”, A daring plunge in to multi media theatre”, A play that makes you think”, Dynamite” and It’s all true!”

This is a powerful and compelling drama featuring live music, poetry, and multi media all written, devised and produced by an impressive ensemble of 14 young actors, and guess what?.... It’s All True!
